Mobility in a
Globalised World

>SUBJECT

The digital transformation changes the perception of mobility, from autonomous systems to interconnected mobility. This affects the (infra-) structure, as well as the processes of producing vehicles and other goods, transporting passengers or products, moving capital, and exploiting data.

The MIGW conference is an interdisciplinary conference which brings together economy and logistics, information technology and engineering. The aim of this year's MIGW conference is to highlight and discuss the effects of the digital transformation. The conference addresses scientific researchers and is also open to entrepreneurs, practitioners and government officials to draw a broad and interdisciplinary picture.
